British Jobless Up to 730,000, Talks Blocked

LONDON, Jan 2 (NYT).—Negotiations to settle the wage disputes involving Britain's coal miners and railroad engineers remained at an impasse today as workers began lining up for unemployment

The nation appeared to be moving through its first three-day work week without any progress toward resolving the labor difficulties that the government has blamed for imposing the short week on most of industry. The Department of Employment estimated that 730,000 workers had applied for imemployment benefits, up from 644,000 before the New Year's boliday. The total number of jobless and those on short time is expected to approach 15 million if the short week lasts into Feb-

Hopes had arisen during the holiday that a wage increase could be worked out for the miners through paying the men for the time required to wash up after emerging from the pits and for the time required to reach the coal deposits from the sur-

IRS to Take New Look at Nixon's Taxes

To Determine Legality Of Some Deductions

By William L. Claiborne WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (WP), —The Internal Revenue Service said today that it will re-examine President Nixon's recent tax returns to determine the legality of some deductions claimed during the President's White House tenure. The IRS did not say what years will be covered by the new audit, but there has been controversy over Mr. Nixon's returns for 1970, 1971 and 1972. During those years, he paid taxes of $5,979 on a total income of more than $800.000-the equivalent of taxes paid by a person carning about $17,000 a year.

An IRS spokesman said that the agency could recover past taxes due for all three of those years, bot that the statute of limitations has expired for levies due from previous years. The President's attorneys have estimated that Wh. Neton colder owe as much as $367,000 in back taxes if the deductions he claimed are disallowed.

In a three-paragraph state-ment, the IRS said it was conducting the audit because of questions raised in the press as to the relationship of the consideration of the President's tax returns by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation and any consideration of the returns by the Internal Revenue Service."

On Dec. E. the same day he released a mass of financial data and made public his tax returns for 1969 through 1972. Mr. Nixon asked the joint congressional committee to examine his returns and report on the legality of his deductions. He told committee chairman Wilher D Mills D Ark, that he would abide by the committee's ruling.

Today's announcement by the IRS was extraordinary because the agency traditionally refuses even to disclose that a tax examination is under way for a specific individual.

However, the IRS said it had been "authorized by the President's representatives" to make the disclosure, and added that the White House staff was "co-operating fully" with federal tax officials and the staff of the joint congressional committee.

An IRS spokesman said that arrangements were being made to exchange information with the joint congressional committee. White House deputy press recretary Gerald L. Warren, who was in San Clemente with Mr. Nixon today, declined to specify which tax returns were being reexamined, but he indicated that

Morning After Israeli Election Finds Meir Party Chastened

By Terence Smith
TEL AVIV. Jan. 2 iNYT: —"The the party who tries to challenga Labor party today is like a person bor now will run the risk of who has come through a terrible automobile accident with only a broken arm," a senior party official observed. "It hurts, but it's not fatal and with a little luck, it will mend."

The simile aptly describes the situation of Premier Golda Melr's party on the morning after Israel's hard-fought parliamentary election. The party has emerged from the experience still in power, but chastened by a significant protest vote over its handling of the October war and keenly aware that its room for maneuver at the Geneva peace conference has beeu narrowed. Mrs. Meir and her colleagues now fare the unappetizing task of forming a new coalilion government in which Labor's own strength will be critically dimin-Islied, by 10 percent, and the strength of its fractious minority partners, especially the National Religious party, correspondingly

It will be pressing Labor to strengthen the hand of the rabhinate at home and to agree in advance to resist territorial concessions at Geneva, especially any involving the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River. The Independent Liberals are expected to emerge with four to five seats, and Labor will need them even more than it did in the outgoing coelition. About 200,000 military ballots have yet to be tallied. According to election projections, the Labor party may lose five seats in the 120-member t, dropping from 56 to 51, and the Likud apparently gained six seats, giving it a total of 38. The Religious party appears to have kept its 11 seats and the Independent Liberals may garner four or five seats. They had four in the last Knesset. If the totals hold up, the three parties which formed the ruling coalition in the seventh Knesset since the formation of the state of Israel 25 years ago would have 66 or 67 seats in the eighth Knesset.

Cairo Comment

CAIRO, Jan. 2 (NYT).—gypt's editorial writers and political commentators stressed today that negotiations for a Middle East settlement must be undertaken in earnest at the Geneva conference now that Israel's elections have been held. "We don't care who wins and who loses," declared Aly Hamdy el-Gammal in the Cairo daily newspaper Al Ahram, echoing the view of many Egyptians.

"The important thing is that the new Israeli government should know the practical way to peace. The electoral auction is now over and the new govern-ment should face the facts." An editorial in Al Ahram asserted that Israel had used the elections as a "pretext" to delay talks.

"The Geneva conference is to see that all parties to the dispute carry out their commitments." the editorial said. "It is inipermissible that it be turned into a forum for a futile debate or renewed prevarication in the guise of a quest for a solution, while obstructing one."

Bonn Admits It Exported Radios to Arabs During War

BONN, Jan. 2 (WP).—The West German government admitted today that it had granted permits for export of long-range radio equipment to Arab countries and conceded that some deliveries might have occurred during the October fighting in the Middla

In making this admission, how-ever, a spokesman for the Foreign Ministry contended that there had been no violation of Bonn's policy of neutrality in the Arab-Israeli conflict. Chancellor Willy Brandt's government has banned shipment of German-made arms and military equipment to the Middle East.

Although he declined to go into specifics, the spokesman asserted Israel, as well as Arah countries, had been supplied with radio equipment of the type in question. He saided that the equipment was required for civilian use and that the export permits had been issued before the outbreak nf the Yom Kippur war.

The government'e admission came efter the Israeli newspaper Haaretz reported yesterday that "sophisticated communications equipment" usable in tanks had been supplied to Arab countries by West Germany during and after the war.

The report was a potential new emborrasment for the Brandt government, which bas been trying to maintain good relations with the Arab world while contending that it will do nothing to harm Israel's interests.

The Haaretz disclosures marked the second time in the last two weeks that Bonn has been ferced to make intricate but vague explanations about ship-tries.

Last week one of the West the Arabs had obtained supplies of "strategically important equipment" from German sources.

The government admitted three helicopters had been delivered to the Sudan for "crop-spraying purposes" and that explosives had been sent to Arab countries. including Syria, but said they were for oil exploration and construction work and had no mili-

Kuwaiti Oil Quota to Britain Could Increase During Month

KUWAIT. Jan. 2 (UPI) - their petroleum supplies ranging Kuwait's oil minister told a Britisb gas station owner who called on him yesterday that Kuwait hopes to get a 60 percent controlling interest in its oil operations some time this month. Oil Minister Abdel Rahman Salem al-Atiki talked over the fuel crisis with Derrick Frost, 33year-old managing director of a garage business in the English south coast resort of Shoreham. Mr. Frost made the flight to Kuwait to see Mr. Atiki, a main architect of the Arab oil boycott, because, he sald, "I'm sick end tired of the way the small businessman has been pushed around hecause of the fuel crisis." The interview was filmed by a British television company. Frost's Complaint

Mr. Frost's main complaint was that he and other garage owners were in canger of being pushed out of husiness by reductions in from 40 to 60 percent. Since the Arab nations have included Britain in their list of "friendly" nations, Mr. Frost asked Mr. Atlki why more Kuwaiti oil was not reaching Britain. Mr. Atiki told Mr. Frost that part of the trouble was that the companies which currently own the Kuwait Oil Co.-British Petroleum and American Gulf Oilwere solely responsible for distribution of supplies, limited by the Kuwait government since October to a production ceiling of three million barrels a day.

He said the companies were obliged by contracts to distribute the reduced amount of oil in an even mahner

"In the near future, when we bave full control of our oil and we are the producer and exporter as well, we will be able to say what quantity goes to which place," Mr. Attki said. "Wa shall then have direct contracts with country and can see that they get the quantities for which they have contracted."

"Wa in Kuwait are going to take over from the oil companies gradually," he said. "We are now going to enter into participation on the basis of 60 percent for Kuwait and 40 percent for the companies."

Mr. Frost asked the oil minister how long it was likely to be before this happened.

"We are negotiating with the oil companies now," Mr. Atiki said. "I hope we will finish with an agreement which I hope our parliament will approve. I hope this can be completed this Kuwatti officials said last month they expected an agreement with tha companies to be settled on the basis of 60 percent Kuwaiti control. The negotiations started after the Kuwaiti parliament rejected a participation deal that would have given Kuwait a 25 percent interest, to rise to a controlling 57 percent by 1982.

Mr. Atiki said that when the expected new deal goes into effect, Britain would get part of its supplies from the 40 percent still owned by the companies. He said the British government would have to negotiate with the Kuwalti government for its allocation from the 60 percent then owned by Kuwait.

Libya Applies Price BEIRUT, Jan. 2 (UPI).-Libya today began applying the new posted price for its crude oil, but Libyan Premier Maj. The Libyan government yesterday announced the posted prica of its crude oil was being raised to $18,768 from $3,925 per barrei (35 gallons). Maj. Jalloud said the going market price of oil in the world market ranged between $20 and $25 a barrel, the Libyan news agency reported.

Chinese Leadership Shuffles Regional Military Commands

HONG KONG, Jan. 2 (NYT).-In a move of major political import, the Chinese Communist leadership has put into effect a sweeping restruffle of posttions among top military leaders in China, a dispatch from Hsinhua. the Peking official press agency, revealed this morning.

transfers were: Hau Shih-yu, since 1954 commander of the Nanking Military Region, embracing the east China provinces of Kiangsu, Chekiang and Anhwei and tha special municipality of Shanghai, to the command of the Canton Military Region, taking in Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Hunan. His transfer was reported in to-day's editions of the International Herald Tribune.

Chen Hist-lien, commander of the Shenyang Military Region, embracing all Manchuria, to the command of the Peking Military Region, taking in the capital—s apecial municipality—a nd Inner Mongolia.

Tsens Szu-yu, commander of the Wuhan Military Region, en-compassing Hupeh and Honan, to the command of the Tsinan Military Region, controlling Shan-

Ting Sheng, commander of Canton, to become chief of the Nanking region. Li Teh-sheng, director of the Political Department of the Armed Forces, to be in command of the Lanchow Military Region, taking in Kansu, Shensi, Ningh-sia and Chinghai.

Two in Politburo The most important of the shifts were those of Gen. Hsu from Nanking and Gen. Chen from Shenyang. Both of these powerful regional military men are members of the Polithuro and have exercised wide influence in their areas for many years. The shifts, which besides those of major figures included dozens of other important transfers, appeared to be part of the process by the Chinese Communist party leadership to trim down the importance of the military hierar-chy make it more amenable to civilian party control in Peking and break up entrenched power positions held by many leaders in many parts of the country. Hsinhua revealed the transfers in the process of reporting what was called "get-togethers" between the army and the people in various provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions on New Year's Eve. The "get-togethers" indicated the transferces have already taken their new positions, ... Political Commissars

Wei Kuo-ching, a Polithuro member and boss of Kwangsi Province for many years, was named first political commissar of the Canton region.

The sweeping shifts also were in line with leadership efforts to dissipate the power of the fac-tion headed by Lin Piao, for many years defense minister party deputy to Mao Tse-tung and his chosen successor, who turned against chairman Mao in 1971 and, after being exposed in an alleged attempt to assassinate him. reportedly died in a plane crash in Mongolia while trying to escape to Russia.

Lin Piac Faction

Since the Lin incident the Peking leadership has redoubled efforts to retract much of the special power that fell to the military during the Cultural Revolution and particularly to purge or demote from key positions throughout the country members of the Lin faction.

Truce Breaches Decrease Along Lines in Mideast

CAIRO, Jan. 2 (NYT).—The number of shooting incidents along the Egyptian-Israeli cease-fire lines fell to 41 Monday from 73 the day before, the UN Emergency Force reported today. The fighting on Monday included an artillery duel that lasted more than three hours about six miles southeast of Qantara; in the Sinai, east of the Suez Canal. With Israel's elections completed and preparations under way for continuing talks at the Geneva peace conference, there is expectation here that military pressures on the front may ease for the time being. Reports of violations are issued here two days after they are sent to UN headquarters.

Golan Heights Clash DAMASCUS, Jan. 2 (AP) .-Syrian and Israeli forces in the Golan Heights clashed twice today with machine guns and artillery, a Syrian military communimé reported. One Israeli soldier was shot and several engineering vehicles were destroyed, it said.

Quintuplets in Berlin BERLIN, Jan. 2 (AP) .- The 30year-old wife of a member of the West Berlin City Council gave birth Dec. 29 to quintuplets. Three of them are still living. They were delivered by caesarian section to Angelika Rasch, whose husband, Waiter, is vice-chairman of the Free Democratic party's members on the council.

Gen, Hau has never definitely been identified as heing in the

Lin faction, but he nevertheless had a command of top importance under Mr. Lin. He disappeared from public view for months at the same time that Mr. Lin, chief of staff Huang Yung-sheng, airforce commander Wu Fa-hslen and others dropped from sight.

Nevertheless, in early 1972 Gen, Esu's name again began to be reported at his Nanking post with no indication that he had been in trouble. When he was re-affirmed in his Polithuro membership after the 10th party congress last August, it appeared that his status was solid and

Various Prices Increase in Italy

ROME, Jan. 2 API.-The prices of newsprint, domestic flight tickets and superhighway tolls rose yesterday in Italy in the first step of an expected wide range of increases.

The price of newsprint rose 45 percent to 180 lire (30 cents) a kilogram, from 123, as a result of increased costs of cellulose. Superhighway tolls were raised 12 percent to pay for the value-added tax. The price of domestic flights increased 10 per-cent by a decision of the Ministry Transportation to meet increased costs.

The government approved increases of up to 48 percent in the prices of cement and fertiliz-ers last week. There were reports that the prices of automobiles, tires and gasoline also will be increased soon.

Darkness at Noon

Solzhenitsyn's new history of Soviet police terror and the sub-human prison camp network, is less important for what it says than for what it teaves unsaid. This horrifyingly detailed account of repression in the Soviet Union from 1918 to 1956 takes on its real importance from the suggestion that the police system it describes continues to this day. The infamous network of slave labor camps remains in operation, even if the numbers imprisoned have been vastly reduced since the amnestles granted by the Khrushchev regime.

Although necessarily published abroad, "The Gnlag Archipelago. 1918-1956." is primerily intended for a Soviet audience, the "200 million" whom the author vowed to reach while he was still himself a prisoner, long before his noveis on the same sobject brought him the Nobel Prize, Mr. Solzhenitsyn is surely achieving this objective.

With jamming of most foreign trensmitters halted, many millions of Russians by now undoubtedly have heard summary accounts of the new book on Western radio broadcasts. Excerpts and the full manuscript ltseif probably will circulate underground in the years to come, as do other banned books. One day, Mr. Solzhenitsyn clearly hopes, his account will play a role in bringing the Soviet people to rise up and end the decades of oppression which they have so far accepted with euch docility.

That day is unlikely to come soon, as Mr. Solzhenitsyn's own report indicates, for the Soviet secret police is the central vitai element—even more perhaps than the Communist party machine—in holding the whole Soviet system together. The network of camps, prisons, communications facilities,

"The Gulag Archipelago." Alexander transportation systems and spying organizations. Mr. Solzhenitsyn reports, "honeycombs" the length and breadth of the Soviet Union. No Soviet citizen, it appears, is ever more than a short distance from some link of this pervasive apparatus of control that permeates all governmental, party and social organizations. The survival of this infrastructure makes it less significant that the actual prison camp population has fallen from an estimated 12 million in Stalin's day to perhaps 1 million today.

Much of what Mr. Soizhenitsyn reports has long been known in the West. But this is the first time that an authoritative Soviet voice of stature has spoken from Moscow itself to inform the Soviet people in detail of their tragedy and to call for punishment of its perpetrators.

Mr. Solzhenitsyn's courageous challenge to the overwhelming power of the police state is a political act without real precedent in the 56 years since the Bolshevik revolution.

The Soviet regime can arrest, imprison, even execute Mr. Solzhenitsyn, But it can no longer suppress his words. It would be far wiser to ease the repression that has increased at home, parallel with detente abroad, in the past year or two, and to permit greater, rather than less, freedom for Soviet dissidents and other thinking citizens.

In the long run, détente may favor such a trend. Meanwhile, the danger of nuclear war makee it a necessity that, as Chancellor Brandt recently eald, the West would have to pursue détente even with Stalin, were he alive today. But the pursuit of détente must not blind the world outside the Soviet Union to the continuing grip of totalitarianism on Soviet society.

Uncertain Mandate

With the close of the polls across Israel, the way is now open for serious negotiations to be undertaken among the Middle East combatants, for the first time in a quarter-

The past two months have passed in a delicate suspension: All sides to the old conflict seemed eager to preserve the diplomatic momentum that had grown up on the ashes of the October battlefleids, yet all sides also recognized that no meaningful bargaining could be undertaken by an Israeli government struggling for renewal of its electoral mandate. It is a tribute to diplomatic skill, good sense and, one can even say, goodwill of all the partles that this interim period in the peacemaking process has been weathered without any apparent dissipation of interest in reaching a political settlement.

The narrow victory of Premier Golda Meir's Labor party leadership will permit continuity in the diplomatic efforts already begun, even though the Labor mandate is sharply weakened. The strong showing of the hard-line Likud opposition may look on the surface like an upsurge of hawkish sentiments, a growing reluctance to make substantial concessions in the Geneva talks. But in fact, Likud apparently did not pick up as many parliamentary seats as some analysts had predicted; the opposition vote may be seen as an act of protest against the leadership in power, rather than support for a hardline negotiating stance.

Mrs. Meir's real task begins now, the formation of a new governing coalition. Monday's vote was hardly a sign of confidence in the leadership of the past, and it will be discouraging if the premier simply tries to perpetuate the complexion of her former cabinet.

The election results give only fragmented guidance to the policies which a new government should follow, domestically and in Geneva. The Israeli public seems in a mood for change, but it is far from united on the direction which that change should take. The best hope for the nervous coalition that will emerge is a solid achievement at Geneva, a negotiated settlement with at least Egypt, that it can then submit to the Israeli electorate as a genuine accomplishment, and thus gain a more positive mandate.

International Opinion

Posturing on the Mideast

Reports on the Middle East situation in the field and at the Geneva conference are nothing more than posturing intended to influence the Peace Conference and the crucial Israeli elections in which war is the principal issue. A renewed outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East cannot be entirely ruled out but, at this stage, we feel that the protagonists are already too deeply involved in the quest for peace to think of going into another war. Besides, the lessons learned from last year's Oct. 6 war are too costly and still too fresh for Israel and Egypt for them to be fighting each other again without giving current peace negotiations a chance to work out a settlement of their dispute. -From the Times-Journal (Manila).

After the Israeli Elections

The formation of a new cabinet will call for extremely subtle choices among men and political currents which are fundamentally split ... On the morrow of an election considered as vital, one is back practically at the starting point. The voters have shown their trust in old Labor values. But they did not speak up on the basic problems of peace. This is a paradox and a dangerous situation. In fact, one faces a kind of pyrrhic victory for "Israel's grandmother." The formation of a new cabinet will be long and difficult. It risks eettling nothing. In this respect it is significant that several influential members of the political party which theoretically won the election should already speak about the need of having new elections within a reasonably short time. But in the field in the Middle East, the status quo should not last too long.

- From Le Figaro (Paris).

The erosion of the Israeli Labor coalition of Mrs. Meir has been confirmed by the result of the elections. And the advance of the nationalist right-less strong than expected by some-has confirmed the failure of the "dovee"; in other words, this has been a relative euccess of the "hawks." "Hawks" against "doves," this is the perennial quarrel. And not in Israel alone. But one must not forget that the destiny of the Hebrew state can ultimately influence that of the whole West. The Israeli electorate has partly disavowed those who called for maximum concessions for the Arabs. Here is a fact that will not fail to weigh down on the proceedings of the negotiations resuming today (Wednesday) in Geneva. One must see this as the first signal of a hardening, and of new difficulties. This setback of the "doves" is in a way a setback too high a price tag for Jerusalem. -From l'Aurore (Paris).

Nixon's Last One Thousand Days

By James Reston

WASHINGTON.—Among many W who long at the beginning of the New Year for 2 new government and a new spirit in America, there is still a reluc-tance to call for the resignation or impeachment of the President, something that holds them back, probably some fear that somehow this would weaken the presidency and harm the nation.

There is something to this notion, but not much. The president is not the government, The security and continuity of the republic do not rest on any one man, not even on a Lincoin let alone Mr. Nixon. The system is strong and resilient, and could not only survive Mr. Nixon's departure hut might even endure his presence for three more

Quiet Exit

But if he were to go quietly, the administration would remain in place with the Congress and the courts, the market would probably jump up after a startied hiccup, and a grateful nation would rally around the new presi-dent as it did after the deaths of Roosevelt and Kennedy.

The popular argument for tolerating three more years of Mr. Nixon is that his achievements in the field of foreign affairs, particularly with the Russians and the Chinese, might be lost if he resigned, and that Vice-President Ford is not as experienced in the foreign arena as Mr. Nixon, which is obviously true.

But if the American people sometimes confuse the power of America with the personality or character of the president, foreign governments do not. The danger now is not that powerful foreign governments might try to take advantage of a new president, but that they might try to take advantage of a distrusted president presiding over a divided America.

Also, in the next three years, the critical foreign questions are not likely to depend on Mr. Nixon's personal relations with Mr. Brezhnev or Chou En-lai, but on United States relations with Western Europe, Japan, and the Middle East, where Mr. Nixon's achievements in the last five years have not been

These are the coming areas. In strategic terms, the Middle East is the key. It is the fundamental political question in the world, for the oil blockade, protected by Soviet power, threatens the in-dustrial security of Europe, Japan, and in a more limited sense, of the United States.

American Answer

But the American answer to these questions depends more on a united nation than on Mr. Nixon. Already, the informing mind in all these diplomatic tangles is not the President's but Mr. Kissinger's, and while all the courtesies of presidential power are respected, the foreign emgovernments are more concerned out the internal unity of America than about anything

Another popular argument against the resignation of the President is that it might set a bad precedent and hurt the institution of the presidency. But Nothing is likely to hurt the presidency more than tolerating a man who has been unfaithful to the spirit of the Constitution, who has put a gang of twisters and moral cripples in high office, and lost the trust of the people. This trust is the first article in the political contract and essential to the moral euthority of the presidency. The question is not what Mr. Nixon's mandate was in the last election, but what it is now. Once a president has lost the confidence of the electorate, resignation is not a bad but a good precedent, and if it were established by any party that a president could be called on by its leaders to resign, future presidents might be more careful about fiddling with the freedom of the people.

Silliest Argument

After all, resignation or dismissal is what happens in all other American institutions or parliamentary democracies when the chief executive fails. They don't ask whether he meant to fail, or hire burglars, or turn over his authority to dunder-heads or crooks, but merely whether he presided over the disaster, and if so, they get themselves a new chief executive officer, coach, or prime minister. Maybe the silliest argument against the resignation of Mr. Nixon is that it would burt the Republican party. Quite the op-posite is the case. Nothing could hurt it more than to keep him the center of an endless controversy over Watergate and all its related horrors.

This is a political nightmare, whereas the alternative gives the Democrats the shakes. With Mr. Ford in the White House, backed by Nelson Rockefeller or Elliot Richardson as vice-president, all the intractable policy problems would of course remain, but the poisonous stmosphere of the country would be swept away, in place for three long years at the chances of a Republican the center of an endless convictory in 1976 infinitely im-

The Newest Vietnam Test

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak craft carriers to the Gulf of

At the same time, the ARVN planes over North Vietnam.

WASHINGTON.—The response in the next two months to severe but still localized Communist attacks in Vietnam, hy the South Vietnamese Army (ARVN) in the field and by the U.S. government in Washington, will probably determine whether Hanol orders a full-scale spring offensive that would create still another Indochinese bloodbath.

Expert opinion high in the government here foresees a continuation of what the Communists now call "strategic attacks" (they used to be "high points") with no general offensive hefore March 1. Whether Hanol attempts the conquest of South Vietnam after that, these ex-perts believe, depends on whether ARVN repels these "strategic ettacks" and whether Saigon gets full political, economic and moral backing from Washington.

There is today more confidence ARVN's steadfastness than Washington's. The shocking support in Congress for a deadly cutoff of oil to Vietnam (though finally killed in conference) suggests a tendency to abandon the Saigon regime at the first sign of troubte. P.esident Nixon's commitment is undoubted, but his ability to maintain support is obviously eroded.

A Deterrent

In fact serious students of Vietnam long have felt the country's future depends on a Watergate-weakened Mr. Nixon. They believe the possibility he might respond to a Communist general offensive with renewed U.S. hombing in defiance of congressional prohibitions remains a major deterrent against Hanol.

This deterrent was strengthened omewhat in November when the Nixon administration, responding to stepped-up Communist operations, dispatched two air"strategic attack" on Kien Duc in the Central Highlands. U.S. experts gave South Victnamese jet aircraft fairly high marks in supporting the infantry and knocking out some Communist More Expected More of the same is expected the next two mouths with the heaviest "strategic attacks" in Tay Ninh and Binh Duong provinces northwest of Saigon on the Cambodian border and in the Central Highlands around Pleiku and Kontum. U.S. officials are confident that ARVN can throw back there assaults and hope Congress will not interfere with the U.S. residual presence in the form of sircraft carriers and reconnaissance flights.

Many other factors besides the U.S. reaction, of course, will determine Hanoi's course. Analysts here believe one faction in the Hanoi Polithuro gives "building socialism" in North Vietnam much higher priority than military conquest in South Vietnam. Moreover, some high officials in Hanoi mistakenly believe the South can be communized by political means, Polish and Hungarian members of the International Control Commission report privately that old-timers Hanoi simply cannot bring themselves to accept the control over the South by President Nguyen Van Thieu's government,

If the bawks in Eanoi win out and a general offensive is launched this spring, it will surpass even the bloody campaign of 1972. Some 180,000 well-equipped North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are now in South Vietnam. If and when a general of-fensve gets the green light, en-other 65,000 reserves will be infiltrated from the North Armor and artillery supplied by the Soviet Union far overshadow the formidable Communist invasion force of 1972.

As in 1972, a massive assault would be made along the demilitarized zone (DMZ) against crack ARVN units in the northern part of South Vietnam. But the main assault is expected in the politically crucial Saigon area. Three divisions of North Vietnamese regulars—the 5th, 7th and 9th-moved into this area months ago and epart from darting back across the border to Cambodia occasionally, have never

One Strategy

In the view of military experts bere, hopes of the Salgon regime may depend on its willingness to quickly bring down troops from the DMZ, sacrificing almost all the northern part of the country in exchange for protecting Saigon. Even then, with no U.S. air support available, South Vietnamese chances of survival are barely even.

If Communist aggression should destroy South Vietnam, few tears would drop in a Washington weary of world burdens and uninterested in old commitments. But would Richard M. Nizon sit by and watch his "peace with boror" in Vietnam be destroyed by Communist arms?

Some level-headed officials do not think so. They suggest that Mr. Nixon, tottering on the brink of impeachment, will push himself over the precipice by order-ing U.S. airpower to fight off the Communist onslaught. Or, perhaps, they just hope Hanoi will so much fear this possible reaction from Mr. Nixon that it will spare bloody Vietnam from yet more tragedy.

Whom to Blame

But this may be a temporary certainty of the day is economic. The record of the Nixon administration here is not seriously touched by charges of graft and corruption. Whatever Mr. Nixon did or didn't do to favor or to hurt milk farmers end IT&T is not seriously thought of as having affected the ecooomy or brought it to its low estate. And it is not now clear whom the people would blame if deficit spending were publicly identified as the energumen in the current situation.

Would they blame President Nixon on the grounds that all basic economic policy is casually thought to be the responsibility of the President? Or would they blame the Congress, which after all voted the deficits, end in dramatic recent cases attempted to override presidential vetoes?

This much is certainly clear. and that is that the Nixon administration has no real line in economic policy. Beyond e few sentimental presumptions in favor busbandry and the free marketplace, Nixon has experimented with everything. Several years ago be said be too was a Keynesian. Note to Sulzberger

Maybe the learned Mr. Sulzberger, who so outrageously de-scribed the autogenocide of the Israelis, including the last paroxyam of throwing a few atomic bombs (I presume over the Arabs, not over themselves), could think

Why not proclaim itself the 51st state of the union and become the fer-de-lance of the United States, in the Middle East, a state to call itself Israel. The only drawback: it would be full of Jews, and some people would not like it.

However, the Russians would be the least to admire it: they would have to stop inciting the Araba against it there would be no war, no arms sales, no home ports for the Russian fleet, and last but not least, no oil blackmail.

After all, the U.S.S.R. voted in the UN 25 years ago for Israel, for one reason only. The Russians knew already then, that without Israel in the Middle East, the U.S.S.R.'s position would be weak only bla-bla-bla (like the Chinese position today). But putting the "thorn in the Arab'e flesh," was a beautiful maneuver, paying off constantly.

I suggest that Mr. Sulzberger exploit this idea for an article which could be more fantastic than the one he wrote about Israel's suicide.

In Milan, the principal art is the art of doing business. Naturally, Continental Bank is there.

The arts flourishing in Italy's major cities have been perfected over the ages. There is the fine glass of Venice. The beautiful and elegant marble of Rome. The leather artistry of Florence.

But in Milan, additional skills have been practiced and perfected. The skills of industrial technology. The skills of steel making, automobile building and chemical processing.

And the skills of making money work.

So today, Milan is Italy's most important industrial and financial center. Moreover, money market and foreign exchange activities are almost exclusively centered in Milan, as is Italy's major stock exchange.

But while Milan has a firm hold on Italian business, it is no less attractive to foreign interests. Of the 700 American companies holding investments in Italy, nearly 400 are in Milan. And of European firms with Italian subsidiaries, 41 per cent are there.

Of course, Continental is there, too. At Via Monte Napoleone 27.

Our full-service branch in Milan is an important link in Continental's growing six-continent banking network. A network which allows us to meet the needs of multinational corporations everywhere. And to meet them with dispatch, efficiency and flexibility you might not expect from a bank as large as Continental.

Talk to Continental's people in Milan. Or in Zurich, Frankfurt, Singapore, Sao Paulo, Taiwan. Or in any financial community of the world where things are happening.

Ragtime in White Tie and Tails

By Henry Pleasants

ONDON (IET) .- For an evening of ragtime piano, the hall the stage setup and the format seemed all wrong. In fact, it was all absolutely right.

The hall was the Queen Elizabeth normally dedicated to classical recitals and chamber music. The setting was the bare stage, occupied by nothing but a Steinway grand plano. It was as if Arthur Rubinstein, ritually attired in white tile and tails, were about to emerge from the wings to play a program of Chopin. Indeed, the plane was the one Rubinstein plays here, and without any thumbtacks stuck into the hammer felts to make it sound like a beat-up old upright.

Instead, the man who emerged from the wings was a 29-year-old American, Joshua Rifkin, attired in white tie and tails. He strode resolutely to the piano, bowed deeply to a sold-out house, and then, without a word, played "Maple Leaf Rag" and some 20 more rags by Scott Joplin, a black American composer who was born in 1868 and died in 1917. Joplin's Objective

What was so right about all this was that Joplin, when he composed those rags, mostly around the turn of the century, had just this sort of setting and performance in mind. His objective was to distill a classical form from the fin de siècle ragtime idiom of vaudeville and minstrel show. As a knowledgeable critic wrote next day in The Guardian, one could "imagine the composer nodding self-righteously Vera Brodeky Lawrence, a highly regarded classical planist, was at work on her definitive "The Collected Works of Scott Joplin," well before Rifkin cut the record "Piano Rags by Scott Joplin," for the Nonesuch label three years ago, which made the American classical music world sit up and take notice. That record and a sequel sold more than a quarter of a million copies and have stood high on the Billhoard listing of "classical" LP best-sellers. A new book, "The

Every Note

Why had his Scott Joplin made so much greater impact than the Joplin of other laborers in the vineyard? "I suppose," he straight, which is pretty hard for a jazz pianist to do, Joulin wanted create a ragtime art form, and he wanted his rags to be played exactly as written, free of any vandeville taint or showbiz flourich. And that's the way I try to play him Every note is his. and it's right where he put it."

Hence the formal recital format at the Queen Elizabeth Hall, The only thing missing was the "serious" music critics. The reviews in the national press were raves; but they were by jazz or entertainment critics. This was a disappointment to Ritkin; now accustomed to being reviewed by "serious" critics in the States.

But he will be back in the spring for another go, and by that time, he hopes, the word about Scott Joplin will have trickled through to those who review Rubinstein's Chopin.

Miss Kent also has an assistant, Constance Woods, Who went to design school and the Fashion Institute of Technology. "Connie and I do all the color matching," Miss Kent said. "We like to mix patterns and colors. the feeling is soft and we

"We like to keep everything very special," she said. "We want people to feel they are getting something they won't find on Seventh Avenue." In a way, it is not too hard to achieve that unique look. "If you're an artist, it's almost impossible to repeat yourself," she said. "On top of it, if you get antique fabrics, you don't get that much quantity—which is a good thing."

But how does she find all those fabrics, now that she is-dealing with large orders? "I dealing with large orders? go to exporters all over the country," ehe started saying when her assistant broke in:

"Oh, give them the real name, ragmen," she said. The supply might die out but "it's amazing the smount there still is.". Unlike most designers, who would have you believe they do it all themselves, Miss Kent admits candidly: We usually have two or more persons working on the same outilt. Because we feel that the more people, the more chances it will be good. You can't do it all yourself. The constant feedback is good." Asked which of the Establishment designers she likes best Miss Kent said. "Ahem, that's a good question. Giorgio di Sant'Angelo and Jean Muir. I guess. I like clothes that are very soft and special. Lots of designers in the States are too commercial. She added, "They disappoint me.

I have no desire to move to Seventh Avenue, to be bought by a manufacturer. No need for seven figures. Sin is enough."

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 2 (AP.DJ).—Venezuelan President Rafael Caldera said last night that he wants foreign-held oil concessions to revert to the state as soon as possible and suggested that other fundamental industries must pass to national hands.

er am convinced that the advancement of reversion is in all respects advisable and even necessary," he said in a New Year's address.

The President did not indicate what, if any, steps would be taken by his outgoing government to advance the expiration date of concessions currently held by foreign; oil companies and cheduled to begin expiring and reverting to the etate in 1983.

Mr. Caldera, a Social Christian. was elected in 1968 and will turn over the government in March to Carlos Andres Perez, a member of the opposition Democratic Action party and winner of that Dec. 9 presidential election.

Mr. Perez has promised that he will advance the expiration date, but has not clarified how or when his government will take over the nation's 34 milliou-bar-- rel-a-day industry, largely run hy U.S. oil firms.

Mr. Caldera said the Ministry of Mines and Hydrocarbons "through its investigations and studies of the future of tha : Venezuelan petroleum industry, has seen more and more clearly - that this activity, fundamental to our economy, most pass to the hands of the national public

Mr. Caldera said that the new Congress, which will meet in March, "will have tha re-sponsibility of adopting" mea-

About 1.7 million harvels of its daily production is sold in the United States and another 800,000 barrels in Canada: About 270,000 barrels go to the Common Market and the remainder is sold in the Caribbean and South America and is used for domestic consumption.

slowing of growth will hurt some countries' balance of payments A slowdown would help the U.S. payments balance, however, because American tourists are more numerous and spend more abroad than anyone else.

A slowdown would affect businesses around the world from airlines to travel services to hotels. An official of American Express says, "We are very, very concerned about the whole situation. There certainly won't be any in-crease in tourism in 1974. We're hoping it will just etay level with 1975 and that may be optimis-

In the last 10 years, the number nf tourists traveling outside their homelands soared to nearly 200 million from 80 million. Their spending, not counting international travel fares, more than tripled to $34 billion from about $7 billion and tourism became one of the biggest items in world

In major part because of this growth, jumbo jets were pur-chased by airlines, lavish hotels were put up and other services ranging from car rentals to traveler's checks were expanded.

But now a series of events, ranging from currency fluctustions and the Mideast war to higher-priced and inadequate supplies of jet fuel is conspiring to brake tourist growth

"This (combination of events) will prove to be the worst thing to hit tourism since World War II," says Charles Barnard, economist for the British Tourist Anthority: "Tourism has just grown and grown, but now this trend is going to be shattered. There may be a decline, but even if there's just a leveling off, that's very serious because everyone has been planning for continued growth." .The Arab oil embargo, plus the sharp oil-price increases, means that airlines will not have enough fuel and the fuel they do get will cost much more.

As one countermeasure airlines are cutting flights. Also, the International Air Transport Association (IATA), meeting in New Zealand, proposed an averaga 6 percent fare increase to cover rises in fuel costs thus far.

But even before these developments, other factors were working against international tourism. One has been the effective downward devaluation of the dollarabout 20 percent over the past two years-making a vacation abroad much more expensive for Americans.

Travel agents, many of whom traditionally operate on paper-thin profit margins, might be the first casualties in the tourism slowdown. Also, resorts around the world whose patrons come hy air could also be hard-hit. Then there is the impact on tha balance of payments. The U.S. travel deficit increased by 116 percent in the 1960s, reaching $2.7 billion in 1971; It has been projected to reach as high as $5.3 hillion hy 1980, if thera is continued fast growth in travel. Any slowdown in growth would therefore be welcome news in Washington.

But countries like Italy, where the tourism industry racks up bigger sales than Fiat's autos. could be badly burt. Without the foreign currency tourists spent in Italy in 1972, the country's balance-of-payments deficit would have nearly trebled, according to the Italian central bank.

Sandoz '73 Group Sales Rise

Sandoz group sales totaled slightly more than 3.5 billion Swiss francs in 1973 (about $1.1 billion), up at least 6.5 percent from 1972. Calculated on the basis of January 1973 exchange rates, the sales growth rate was about 20 percent in 1973, up from 12 percent in 1972, says C.M. Jacottet, chairman of the Swiss pharmaceutical firm. Net income was at a satisfactory level despite parity changes and sharply rising energy costs, ha says, without citing figures. The hoard is proposing to pay a 1973 dividend of 65 francs per share, unchanged from 1972.

Toyota Misses '73 Sales Target Toyota Motor Sales Co. fell about 60,000 units sbort of achieving its 2.35 million-vehicles sales target for 1973. Shotaro Kamiya, president, attributes the shortfall primarily to production difficulties that erose in midyear when shortages of various industrial raw materials appeared, Looking toward 1874, he notes that the oil crisis is having a substantial negative impact on demand for automobiles. In addition, forecasts of stagnation for the Japanese economy are certain to reduce institutional demand for vehicles, which still comprises a large percentage of overall demand. In these circumstances, he adds, Toyota plans to shift its emphasis toward improvements In quality rather than pursuing "growth for the sake of growth."

Sun Oil to Double Spending

Sun Oil Co. will almost double its rate of investment in 1974 to $650 million. The money will he spent on locating new reserves, expanding and modernizing production, transportation and refining, and improving the environment. Sun's 1973 earnings are expected to continue the pattern of the first nine months, which means the company should earn a rate of return of approximately 7 percent on its assets. This would be higher than the 1969-72 average of 5.5 percent, but lower than the 1965-68 average of 8 percent. But the company says that "this is not an adequate improvement in profitability given today's cost of money, earnings in other industries, and essentiality of attracting massive new capital flows into expansion of oil and gas

Economic Stabilization Act Expires April 30

U.S. Studies Future of Wage-Price Controls

Now, the administration is running a Phase-4 controls program stiffer than Phase-2, feeling its way very gingerly out of those controls, and talking favorably of the usefulness of some sort of body to continue to watch over wages and prices.

If the role that body would play were the only problem facing waga and price controllers, the decisions might not be too difficult. But the President's anthority, through the Economic Stabilization Act, to impose any sort of mandatory wage and price controls will expire April 30.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shults has said he is reluctant to ask Congress for an extension of that authority for fear legislators would tack on crippling amend-

With the complications of the energy crisis far from sorted out and the decontrol process atill in its early stages, administration policymakers are holding off about Phase-5 and on whether to request an extension of the Stabilization Act.

Privately, officials admit to a further complication; The administration's relationship with Congress is at a low ebb. Meanwhile, pressure is mounting from business and labor to

Fat Executives Carry Less Weight According to Survey of Pay Scales

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AF).—Fat men don't fara well in landing higher-paying executive jobs, according to a survey by an employment agency that specializes in placing executives.

An overweight person may be losing as much as $1.000 a year for every pound of fat, said Robert Half, whose survey

• Among executives in the $25,000-$50,000 salary range, 9 percent were more than 10 pounds overweight: ● In the $10,000-$20,000 executiva range, 39 percent were more than 10 pounds beavier than the standards of normal weight established by insurance companies.

Mr. Half attributed the finding to a prejudice against tha overweight and what he held to be a false belief that they are not as good workers as slim persons. The overweight, he said, are unfairly stereotyped as slow, sloppy, inefficient, overindulgent and are less likely to be bired or promoted into important, high-paying jobs.

Commodity Cost Rise Gold Shares Mars Inflation Outlook

By Edwin L. Dale Jr.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (NYT). -An ominous new rise during the last two menths in prices of commodities things grown on the earth or dug from the earth -has increased prospects for inflation in 1974, in the view of private and government economists.

The hugo inflation of 1973, tho worst in peacetime in the modern era, was in great measure a "commodity inflation," the first of its kind since the Korean war in 1951. Raw materials of all kinds, farm and nonfarm, soar-ed in price all over the world, quite apart from the separate explosion of oil and energy

This kind of inflation is entirely different, for example, from an inflation caused by big increases in wages, which push up prices.

After reaching a peak in mid-August, the various indexes of commodity prices, food and nonan encouraging decline. But the turnsround came at the end of October and since then tha movement has been upward.

"We are not altogether surprised," says Gary L. Seevers, a member of the Council of Economic Advisers, "but naturally we do not like it."

He and others say there is no way of knowing how long the new trend may last. A nuorber of conflicting forces arc at work on commodity prices, and they vary from item to item. In the last week of the year, prices of some non-farm conmodities began to decline on the

London and other world commodity markets. But farm and food prices have shown no real aign of dipping again. Wheat is again trading above $5 a bushel, an unheard-of price last year, after dropping below that level. Live cattle prices, which were down to $40 a hundred pounds or below, are now elose to $50 on the futures market. As compared with a year ago. these are some other examples of the prica explosion: Natural rubber-op 157 percent, tallow-up 119 percent, tin-up 85 percent, zinc-up 45 percent, cocoa beans -up 69 percent.

The general explanation for the commodity inflation of 1973 was booming world demand, with all industrial countries experiencing strong business expansion at once, and supply shortages of some items for various reasons. These ranged from strikes in Chile, affecting the price of copper, to the U.S. prize freeze that affected the supply of cattle moving to feed lots.

In addition, the devaluation of the dollar against the other leading currencies had the effect of raising the price of some world-traded commodities in the United

The recent renewed rise of commodity prices, together with the companion burst in the price of oil, has led forecasters to raise their estimates of inflation next year. As one example. Manufacturers Hanover Trust in its latest forecast points to the prospect of relatively sluggish business con-ditions in 1974 and adds:

"Moreover, inflation will not only improve as might normally be expected—it

But Volume Slackens Awaiting Peace Talks

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (IHT) .-Prices on the New York Stock Exchange began the new year on winning note today with gold mining shares taking top honors following a sharp jump in the price of gold bullion in London. Some analysis attributed the overall strength to an inflow of traditional, new year reinvestment money, while others believed that the advance was more the result of internal factors due to big losses in the last ten weeks of 1973. Auto shares, however, bucked the trend, generally losing small

Energy Cuts Threaten Semiconductor-Makers

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 2 (AP-DJ) .- The energy crunch is aiming a potentially devastating blow at the U.S. semiconductor industry, which supplies vital components for all modern electronic equipment. The sudden and critical problem looms because semiconductor makers are heavily concentrated in the Santa Clara valley just south of here. Local shortages of natural ges and fuel oil promise to force a sharp reduction in 1974 in electrical power, which (C.S) is essential for semiconductor production. Robert Noyce, president of Intel Corp. a semiconductor maker near here, estimates that 36 percent of the nation's output of semiconductors comes from Santa Clara County. Semiconductors are the tiny solid devices that have come into wide use since World War II as replacements for vacuum tubes and other bulky switching and amplifying devices. They range from simple transistors and diodes used in radios to the highly cophisticated minuscule integrated circuits used in computers, color-television sets, and military and space hardware.

The threat of interrupted growth for semiconductor makers could have wida repercussions. Producers say shortages of the devices could lead to severe economic dislocations in other industries that depend on them. One customer, Ampex Corp. a Californiaequipment, says any cutbacks in semicon-ductor supplies would hit our plants in Belgium, Japan, evarywhere. Ampex already is waiting longer for deliveries of semiconductor components than it ever has in conductor components than it ever has in cases, up to 55 weeks. The delay reflects the record backlog of orders that semiconductor producers have built up despite major expansions of capacity in 1973. If there is power rationing in California, the bigger and older companies generally electricity in its main plant in 1973 then in 1973, C. Lester Hogan, president, says.

The major semiconductor makers outside

California do not see any serious energy squeeze. Dallas-based Texas Instruments and Motorola Inc.'s semiconductor-products division in Phoenix say they do not anticipate any harmful power shortages in 1974. Many remiconductor companies here, howover, have doubled their production in the last year. Forcing them to cut their power usage 10 percent would be "an impossible situation," says Charles E. Spork, president

His own company has grown 70 percent in the period, and a 10 percent power cutback "means a 60 percent reduction in our production," he says. "It means a complete disaster in the electronics industry. We'll have un-

Semiconductors are made in electric furnaces that are kept at some 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit around the clock. There is only one supplier of that electricity here-Pacific Gas & Electric, which says that shortages of natural gas have forced it to seek additional off to fuel its generators but that it cannot or voluntary cutbacks aren't satisfactory, there will have to be mandatory cutbacks of 10 to 15 percent or whatever, depending on fuel," a spokesman for the utility says. "And beyond the mandatory cutbacks, there would be sequential interruptions either on top of or in place of the cutbacks." The sequential interruptions, also called rolling blackouts, would be elamped on customers to cut power consumption by 10 percent from a year earlier. "If the requests specific neighborhoods or regions for a few hours at a time. Semiconductor makers say these would be especially disastrous because unscheduled power interruptions of more than 30 minutes at a time will destroy the expensive quartz linings in their electric

Even though the semiconductor industry, because of its growth, is consuming 20 percent more power than a year ago, there have not been any commitments made to give any industry favored status.

A spokesman for the utilities commission "They (semiconductor makers) are asking for favored treatment. The building industry is asking for favored treatment. The carpenters' union said, 'Call out the Marines to keep our jobs.' The California Farm Bureau Federation is preparing a study to present to the commission. It all depends on whose ox is getting gored. If anything is coming out of this, it's a recognition that our system is indivisible. The interdependence of every segment of our society is apparent. How can you give them (semiconductor makers) more favored treatment than any other segment of commerce?"

The growing internationalization of the Tokyo capital market is a well-known fact. Daiwa has participated fully in this trand, and consequently our underwriting business has increased remarkably during the past year.

We also pride ourselves on heing innovative in international finance strategy.

We were the first among Japan's four largest underwriting firms to undertake the private placement of notes issued by a foreign central hank, the first to arrange a note-plus-loan package for placement in Japan.

A record like that reflects initiative. Depth of experience. Varied financial capabilities. Qualifications that enable us to carry out the very simple or the very complex.

We helieve these are the qualifications you look for in an international financier.

If we're right, perhaps you will get in touch with us at our headquarters or any one of our offices around the world.

And when you do, call us hy our first name . . . Daiwa.

Ashland Oil reports record fiscal year results.

Ashland Chemical

Ashland Canada

Earnings jump 25%, sales :1se 15% over last year's all-time highs.

Ashland achieved record results for the year ended September 30, 1973. Net income rose 25% to $85.2 million. Earnings per share advanced 28% from $2.64 to $3.37. In addition, cesh flow from operations was up 13% to $176.6 million and sales increased 15% to $2.4 billion. While Ashland has benefited from improved conditions in the petroleum and chemical industries, the primary force behind the continued growth in profits has been its billion dollar capital expenditure program of the past five years. The timely addition of these assets and their effective utilization has provided a firm foundation for continued growth.

Ashland Petroleum exceeds $7 billion in sales.

Reflecting unprecedented demand for petroleum products, sales increased 12% to $1.5 billion, while operating income surged 29% to $133.7 million. Refinery runs were a record 338,000 barrels a day despite crude oil supply and transportation problems. A letter of intent was signed with the National Iranian Oil Company to establish a joint venture involving Ashland's New York State refining, transportation and marketing facilities, and crude oil to be supplied by NIOC. Negotiations are proceeding on this transaction. The expansion of pipeline facilities, including construction of a pipeline between Owensboro and Ashland, Kentucky, will increase Ashland's ability to deliver foreign crude oil to its inland refineries.

Ashland Exploration boosts crude oil and gas production.

tion's crude oil production increased 20% and natural gas production nearly doubled. Major new holdings were acquired in Nigeria and offshore Louisiana. Exploration drilling on two Nigerian blocks will begin in the near future. Drilling has been successful on two offshore Louisiana leases and production platforms have been ordered. First production from the Abu Musa discovery in the Persian Gulf is expected by mid-1974, with 10.000 barrels a day going to Ashland's 25% interest. The first well is being drilled on North Sea acreage where Asbland has a 20% interest.

Ashland Canada makes progress on all fronts.

Substantial increases were again achieved: Ashland Canada's sales increased 34% to $103 million, and income grew 24% to $11.3 million. Crude oil production averaged 22,300 barrels a day, a 24% gain. Increased prices for Canadian crude oil and gains in production provide a firm foundation for continued earnings growth. Ashland Canada's asphalt paving and materials operations also had a record year, and are expected to continue

Ashland Chemical growth apparent in year's results.

Ashland Chemical sales for fiscal 1973 climbed to $427 million - up 22% from 1972. Operating income rose 43% to $32.5 million. Production has now begun at the extensively renovated Hammond, Indiana fatty acids plant, and the Foundry Products Division is expanding its Cleveland plant to permit a 50% boost in resins production. The Industrial Chemicals & Solvents Division continues to grow, with new plants in Houston, Texas, and Newark, California. The Resins & Plastics Division, first domestic producer of thermosetting polyester.

coatings resins, has begun full-scale production in its Newark, New Jersey plant.

Ashland Resources gains continuing a six-year trend.

Year-end results for Ashland Resources show a 17% gain in sales to $375 million, and a 5% growth in operating income to $35.6 million. Operations in asphalt paving, construction, and the sale of stone and gravel set records. Warren Brothers Company, in association with others, has completed a $53 million contract near Washington, D.C., and is ahead of schedule on two companion projects. Warren also completed its work at the Dallas-Ft. Worth International Airport - construction of the guideway and bridges for the Airtrans transit' system, and an expressway through the airport. Coal sales by Ashland affiliated companies more than doubled in 1973, reaching 12 million tons.

appear childishly simple may have unexpected complexities in special circumstances. Textbooks for beginners often show the reader an ace-queen combination in dummy to illustrate 2 finesse. and leave the reader with the complacent assumption that he now knows all there is to be known about such a holding.

But consider the deal shown in the diagram, which was played in a Dutch tournament. After an opening bid of one diamond by West, North-South climbed to an optimistic contract of four hearts. South's jump to two hearts was slightly aggressive, since the diamond jack was likely to be useless. As it turned out, however, that card was far from use-

West led a trump and South won in the dummy with the queen. He led the heart ten to his ace at the second trick, preserving a later entry to his hand, ♣ AQ5 ♥ KQ103. ♦ A74 WEST (D) Both sides were vuinerable. The bidding: North East South DЫ. 4 ♥ .

Some suit combinations that and led a spade. West made the routine but fatal play of the eight, which was all South needed. He won the queen and ace and continued spades, giving West the fifth trick.

> The diamond king was played to dummy's ace, and South entered his hand with a trump lead and cashed his last spade throwing a diamond from dummy. The lead of the "useless" diamond jack then endplayed West. He had to lead a club or give a ruff and sluff, so the game was made.

> At another table West did better. When the spade was led at the third trick he put up the jack. South won with the queen and continued with the ace, but West foiled his plan by dropping the king. East now controlled the third round of spades with ten, and gained the lead to shift to clubs and give the defense four tricks.

The play of the spade suit was the key. The defense would prevail if East could win a trick with the ten. If South could prevent this he would succeed in making his game.

THE NEW YORK CITY BALLET

By Lincoln Kirstein. Illustrated by Martha Swope and George

Platt Lynes. Knopf. 216 pp. $25. Reviewed by Anna Kisselgoff

E wanted to know about the New York City Ballet but were afreid to ask is not what you will find in this beautifully illustrated volume. "The New York City Ballet" offers little new material on one of the greatest classical ballet companies of all time. One could argue that it is not so much about the City Ballet as it is about its co-founder and general director, Lincoln Kirstein He is best known as the man who brought you all those wonderful neoclassic plotless mas-terpieces by George Balanchine to the music of everyone from Bach to Stravinsky. Without doubt, he was the chief propagandist for a new American classicism in hal-let. Yet at times his concerns took another form.

In 1939, he told a reporter he wished to produce ballets based on "America's choicest folklore and history." The Osark Moun-tain stories were one possible source, he said, "and another will be based on a mythical character called Don Coyote, a sort of Donald Duck, who will relate the tales of the old Southwest."

And here is Lincoln Kirstein in 1973, closing this book with e description of "The Birds of America," 2 Balanchine ballet about James Audubon that is planned for the 1976 Bicentennial: "We identified him [Audubonl with Johnny Appleseed, who strode across the Middle West, sowing orehards..." One of the scenes of this pageant will include an "apple festival, emoved by Johnny Appleaced with entrees of Pippins, Winesans, Gravensteins, Audubon's birds."

The road from Don Coyote to "Don Quixote," the 1985 Balan-chine ballet that represents the City Ballet at its most Establishment, is not, then, quite as long as it seems. Whatever the theme (or lack of it) in ballets created under Mr. Kirstein's aegis since 1934, there has been one constant. All were stages in the development of a new American classical ballet style.

In their 40-year collaboration, including the earlier companies that led to the formation of the City Ballet in 1948, Mr. Kirstein, horn in Rochester, and Mr. Ba-lanchine, born in Russia's St. Petersburg, were consistent in their goal: to establish a school and an American classical ballet repertory company with its own new works. Immediately, this involved an artistic policy that differed markedly from that of other companies here and abroad.

Choreography would be considered an independent art, not an adjunct to other There would be no stars. Revivals of the 19th-century classics were ruled out. Spectacle would be subordinate to dancing and, importantly, to distinguished musical collaboration, Above all, tradition was to be the base for 'Innovation."

These ideas weave in and out of critic for The New York Times.

"The New York City Ballet" as a theme. Anyone who has read Mr. Kirstein's previous books will find them familiar. Some phrases here are even repeated verbatim from his "Movement and Metaphor" (1971), a profound book that did not receive the critical attention

It is not that Mr. Kirstein plagiarizes himself. Rather, it is that these concepts bear repeating and are still baffling to some who look in vain at the City Ballet for the applause-milking features of other companies.

Like all real intellectuals, he is interested in ideas for their own sake. The fact that his theories have found practical application by way of a ballet company makes them no less fascinating as ideas. The richness of this book lies in the variety of brief essays that sprout from every page. Lin-coln Kirstein is one of this country's most distinguished commentators on the arts.

There is no need to agree with him (although it is difficult not to). His prejudices are, as usual dazzlingly documented. yet there is a new generosity in this book

Its hero is not Mr. Balanchine -he is placed hors concours-but the late Morton Baum, whose death Mr. Kirstein attributes to the struggle for control of the State Theater, between the City Center and the board members of Lincoln Center, Like Mr. Baum Mr. Kirstein is a Jew who was not insensitive to anti-Semitisc Visiting Germany in 1923, he and his mother were denied hotel reservations and told "we would be happier at a kosher rooming

After noting that Mr. Baum later chairman of City Center was ousted from the Metropolitan Opera board, he remarks that "covert or clear anti-Semitism was never absent" from the Met If the City Ballet is what it is today, it is because Mr. Baum and Mr. Kirstein dld not allow social snobbery to influence their artistic policies.

At heart, this is a personal memoir. We hear that Mr. Kr-stein's father kept office files on his children and employed Nicola Sacco's son as a chauffeur. Heir-to a department store fortung (Fliene's) and Harvard-educated, Mr. Kirstein knew everyore who-mattered. His sketch of Dag Hammarskjöld should be required reading for political scientists.

We learn something about the City Ballet here in the sense that we know more now about the man who dreamed it all up. Originally, this was to be a picture book about the company, and the text way to document a visual art than visually. The studio photographs of George Platt Lynes and the action shots of dancers by Martha Swope, whose book this is very much too, are already invaluable

√Ohio State Rout " Of USC Justifies Rose Bowl Trip

By Leonard Koppett

CNYT):-Vindication on three levels competitive, political and tacticals was enjoyed to the full-est yesterday by Ohio State and its supporters as the Buckeyes overpowered the University of Southern California, 42-21, in the 60th Rose Bowl.

The competitive vindication was simple and direct. Exactly a year ago, in this same beautiful bowl, which held 105,267 spectators yes-terday, USC had routed the Buckeyes, 42-17, after a 7-7 first

Big 8 Coach Not Surprised At Texas Loss

DALLAS, Jan. 2 (UPI).-A well-known football critic had a choice seat yesterday at the 38th Cotton Bowl game, and he came no with a fairly pointed review of the drama which ended in a 19-3 Nebraska, triumph over

"The University of Texas." said Barry Switzer, "would have to play Missouri for third place in the Big Hight Conference."

Switzer is coach of the Oklahome Sconers, the Big Eight champions who soundly whipped both Cotton Bowl entrants this season but were forbidden from bowl competition because of a recruiting scandal last year.

The eleventh-rated Cornbuskers' victory over eighth-ranked Texas, Nebraska's fifth straight bowl success, was as complete as their fans could have wanted. The only thing that spoiled it, and for a while appeared might have kept it from happening at sil, was a valiant goal-line stand by Texas late in the first half which left the score at 3-3 following a wild 30 minutes of foot-

But in the second half a key interception by safety Bob Thornton in the end zone, a runback by Thornton of a short field-goal attempt, the substitute quarterbacking of Steve Runty and the running of Tony Davis served to make it a Nebraska show.

And afterwards, the Nebraska players did not hide their belief that Teres would be just another club in the Big Eight instead of a yearly champion as it is in the Southwest Conference.

Texas would be third in the Big Eight behind Nebraska and Missouri might give them 2 heck of a battle."

Switzer, who visited the Nebraska dressing room following the game, expressed no surprise at "I didn't think Texas could move the ball on them," the Oklahoma coach said.

Two field goals accounted for all the scoring in the first half. Texas's Billy Schott kicked a 22yarder shortly after a Nebraska fumble in the first period and the Cornhuskers' Rich Sanger booted a 24-yarder after a weird fumble in which the ball bounced off a foot of Texas fullback Roosevelt Leaks and into the hands of Steve Manstedt. Manstedt ran 62 yards to the Texas eight with the miscue.

With the score tied near the end of the half, Nebraska stormed to the Texas one and had a first down and goal from that point. But four times the Texas defense-with linebacker Wade Johnson leading the charge re> pelled Nebraska. The game might have turned on that note and it seemed to have when the Loughorns came out in the second half to mova briskly into Cornbusker territory.

It was then, however Thornton came up with his inter-ception of an underthrown pass and it was all Nebraska from there.

Ritch Bahe scored one of the two second-half touchdowns for Nebraska on a 12-vard run, and, shortly after the Combusk covered a Texas fumble at the Texas 19, Davis ran in from the three for the clinching score.

David gained 106 yards on 28.

carries and Nebraska gained 340 yards on the ground against that normally stingy Texas defense. He was voted the game's outstanding offensive player and Johnston was picked as the lead-ins defensive player.

Texas's running attack, however, was blunted. Leaks, the nation, could gain only 48 yards although he missed part of the fourth leading ball carrier in the first half with a bruised knee.

The political situation had to do with the storm that cross when Blg Ten officials chose Ohlo State for the Rose Bowl after its 10-10 tie with Michigan in the final regular-season game between the two unbeaten teams. Whatever the merits of Michigan's claim based on Ohio State's trip last year, this victory certified Ohio State's credentials and completed the eighth undefeat d season in its 84-year football

And tactically, the way of Woody Hayes, the Onio State coach whose approach to football is entirely infantry-minded, prevailed over the more contemporary pass-run mixtures coach John Mckay concocts so success

Different Ways

Ohio State made 323 yards rushing, and threw only eight passes—but completed six of them for 129 yards. The Trojans threw the ball 40 times and completed 22 for 239 yards, but even with their fine runners, they gained only half as much—167 yards—along the ground.

"This is the greatest victory I have ever had, and the great st we have ever had, and collared." Hayes, looking and sounding jubilant. "We worked hard on our passing these 15 days, because we thought that was the thing to dn against USC." The six completions more than doubled Ohio's normal rate of 2.9, so the practice paid off.

The most noticeable heroes were the three principal backs, Corny Greene, Archie Griffin and Pete Johnson, and defensive back Neal Colzie; but, naturally, ft was the nverall offensive blocking and defensive hitting that made the game swing gradually more and more in Ohio State's direc-

Johnson, a freshman scored the first three touchdowns at close range and wound up with 94 yards in 21 carries,

Griffin, the sophomore who already has all-America recognition, gained 149 yards on 22 car-ries, and finally scored himself on a 49-yard run for the final touchdown. Most of his earlier work brought Johnson within

. Greene, also a sophomore, was the quarterback who polished his talented qualities. His first attempt of the game was inter-cepted, and his third missed, but all the others connected, four times with Fred Pagac, a senior tight end. And when the goahead touchdown was needed onfourth down from the one, Greene scored it himself.

And Colzie, a junior, set up that turning-point score by ning back a punt 56 yards to the USC nine-yard line, when the Trojans led, 21-20, late in ths third period. The 27-21 lead supplied by that score became 35-21 when Greene ran in for a twopoint conversion after a touchdown set up by Griffin's 25-yard run early in the fourth quarter.

For USC, ranked No. 1 a year ago, the season wasn't exactly a disgrace, either. The Trojans lost to Notre Dame, 23-14, and tied Oklahoma, 7-7. McKay declined to make comparisons.

Pat Haden, the junior quarterback passed well and scrambled for gains. Anthony Davis, obviously a target of the Ohio State defense, did make 74 yards running. But Ohio State seemed to have a physical superiority that. told as the game wore on. Game Statistics

Penn State Is No. 1 On the Victory List

By George Solomon

MIAMI, Jan. 2 (WP).-Penn State became this season's top winning team in college football last night, if not the highest ranked. The Eastern champions stuck a 12th victory on a perfect season, defeating Louisiana State,

16-9, in the 40th Orange Bowl. In passing Notre Dame (11-0), Ohio State (10-0-1), and Ala-bama (11-1) in number of victories this season, the Nittany Lions showed they could win with weapons nther than Heisman Trophy recipient John Cappal-

Cappalletti, a sensational running back who scored 17 touchdowns and was Penn State's big man all season, sprained an ankle in practice last Wednesday and did not work with the team the rest of the week.

While the unannounced injury did not keep Cappalletti from starting, ha was not his normally productive self. So, coach Joa Paterno got help from quarter-back Tom Shuman punt returner Gary Hayman and an aggressive lefense to turn back the determined Tigers from Baton Rouge. Shuman, a junior, brought the Nittany Lions from behind in the touchdown pass to flanker Chuck Herd. Hayman, meanwhile, set up Penn State's other touchdown with a derting 36-yard punt re-

Penn State's powerful defense, burned early by LSU's swift runners, responded with a clutch performance,

No Room

Cappelletti, rarely finding running room and not being able to run from defenders, was limited to 50 yards in 26 carries by a tenacious LSU defense led by linebacker Warren Capone and end Binks Miclotto

After the game, Cappelletti said his ankle did not bother him as much as the slippery artificial surface on the floor of the Or ange Bowi. "I just could not cut," he declared. "When John got running room, he got yardage." Penn State coach Joe Paterno said. "But he had little room." Paterno maintained his team's legitimate bid for No. 1 ranking. "We have as much right as any one," he declared, "We're 12-0."

Shuman kept Penn State's attack moving, completing six of 17 passes for 185 yards. The underdog Tigers outgained Penn State, 274 yards to 185, and recorded 18 first downs to Penn State's nine. But the Nittany Lions, with superb linebacking from Ed O'Neil and Doug Allen, were exceptional defensively after the first period. LSU, looked upon by Orange Bowi officials as unwelcomed relatives since losing its final two games of the regular season came out seeking redemption. Off and Running

Robert Dow, a freshman, got the Tigers off on the right foot, returning the opening kickoff 46 yards. The Tigers then moved 51 yards in nine plays to a touch-down, with tailback Jad Davis tearing through Penn State's line five times for 39 yards.

Steve Rogers scored the touchdown, a three-yard blast through right tackle, only 3 minutes 47 seconds into the game. Rusty Jackson's conversion kick put LSU into a 7-0 lead.

Who Ruined the Steaks?

Team on Rice Krispies Won't Beat Notre Dame

By Red Smith

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2 (NYT).-When James J. Braddock was an unemployed loogshoreman on relief, he knocked out Corn Griffin in a semi-windup. "I did that nn hash," he told his manager, Joe Gould. "Get me a piece of steak and see what I can do," Gould got him a piece of steak and he whipped Max Baer for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

Now, football players at Alabama are seldom seen in bread lines, but their dietary luck turned sour Monday afternoon when a flash fire in the kitchen of their motel burned up 53 of the steaks ordered for their pre-game meal. They were soon to discover that you can't run against Notre Dame on Rice Krispies.

Their first three plays from scrimmage in the Sugar Bowl Monday night produced a net loss of one yard. On the nine offensive plays they were able to mount in the first quarter, the net gain was zern —compared with 112 yards and six points for Noire Dame on 20 plays. And undefeated Alabama had the No. 2 offensive record in American college football during the season, with an average of 480.7 yards and 41.3 points a game.

More than anything else in a game that had just about everything else, it was the Notre Dame defence that undid the favorities, 24-23, and established the gristly scholars from South Bend, Ind., as national champions. Not even the sorcery of Bear Bryant, tha mystic who coaches Alabama, could shake off that relentless pursuit, and the Bear employed all the witchcraft at his disposal, like taking the same motel suite he had occupied when his teams won the Sugar Bowi games of 1962, 1964 and 1966.

What looked in advance like the most attractive match in all the holiday bowls turned out to be one of the most highly entertaining spectacles in memory. Perhaps surprisingly, three hours of spirited combat and sustained excitement left only a tiny residue of argument. There was lively debate afterward about just one tactical decision, and that came out of a situation created by Notre Dame's

The last time Alabama had possession, the defense made it fourth down, 20 yards to go, on to Airbenna's 30-yard line. Leading by one point, Notre Dame put an 11-man rush on the punier, Greg Gantt, who boomed one 69 yards. As often happens on the big rush, some-body hit Gantt for a roughing-the-kicker infraction. Meanwhile, with no receiver in the neighborhood, the punt rolled dead one yard from Notre Dame's goalline.

That is such stuff as postgame arguments are made on. Some felt Alabama should have taken the 15-yard penalty and tried for first down on fourth-and-five. Bryant, who had seen his attack smashed again and again for losses or small gains, realized that turning the ball over in Alabama territory would tavite Notre Dame to score again. With exactly three minutes to play, he properly declined the penalty, relying on his defense to keep Notre Dame pinned down and get the ball back in time for a winning score.

The Alabama defense did its job admirably-for two plays. Then Notre Dame's Tom Clements, an audacious quarterback under orders from a doughty coach, dared to pass from the endzone. Rohin Weber, a sophomore end who had appeared in nine games during the season and caught one pass for 11 yards, caught this one for 35 yards and the national championship.

Daring Play

That title wasn't altogether secure, however, until Clements wore out the clock, once rolling out for a first down on his own to keep possession. This is a young man from the Pittsburgh suburb of McKees Rocks who so admires his doctor father and other achievers in the family that be says, "I wake up every morning feeling inferior." It may belp the ego when he wins tha Heisman Trophy next year as America's best college player.

Trying to probe the Notre Dame defense, Bryant used 47 players in the first quarter, began to get results in the second period and had 60 players in the game before the half ended. One of them, named Danny Ridgeway, would get the Sidney Carton Award for self-sacrifice if the Sugar Bowl committee had any class.

Ridgeway is a sophomore quarterback who had a leg operation last spring. To recondition the leg and avert mental errors by the working quarterbacks, ha spent the 1973 season as a conduit for coachly cunning. At Alabama games, a polaroid sequence camera on the press-box level photographs every play. Jimmy Sharpe and Bud Moore of the coaching staff study these pictures, choose the next play and telephone their selection to Mal Moore, the coach of the suggestion to Ridgeway and unless there is a veto from Bryant, Ridgeway delivers the message to the quarterback and scampers back off the field before action resumes.

Other coaches who don't trust their quarterbacks shuttle players in and out as messengers but Ridgeway doesn't play at all. Alabama system, requiring a roundtrip for every message, is time-consuming, but it is the Bryant version of giving the game back to the boys. After the first quarter, the advice Ridgeway delivered was sound advice that helped make for captivating entertainment.

Perhaps a personal confession is in order here. Notre Dame's victory was warmly welcomed, though not because of loyalty to alma mater. When fat insurance solicitors and ultra high frequency matrons old enough to know better how undergraduate cheers on buses and make the nights hideous with shouts of "rrrrrollill, tide," anything that will silence them is warmly welcomed. Beano Cook, of the American Broadcasting Company television network is more tolerant. He says that if you live in Alabama, your football team

U.K. TV Chief Urges EEC Sales To United States

LONDON, Jan. 2 (UPI).-Sir Lew Grade says that if Britain alone can sell tens of millions of dollars worth of television programs to the United States, the Common Market countries should do even better by massing their creative talents-and cash.

Sir Lew, head of Britain's Associated Television, has just returned from Hollywood and New York where he said he made new deals worth several million dollars. He said that details would have to await an announcement in February. But in the meantime, he is going ahead with plans to widen the production relation-ships he already has with Italian television and with French TV.

"I'm going to use the best creative talent in the whole Common Market to give people quality programs that they've never even been able to imagine," he said. "The important thing for the Common Market countries is to get together and export to America and the rest of the world."

As an example he cited "The Lawgiver" with Burt Lancaster as Moses, already sold to CBS-TV although it is eight weeks behind schedule because it was filming in the Middle East when the Arab-Israeli war erupted.

"It's costing $250,000 to $300,000 an bour," he said. "This is the sort of program that even America can't afford to make." "The Lawgiver" is a co-production with Italian television.

Sir Lew said that he bad sold a series of one-hour specials. under the working title of "The Origin of the Mafia," to the United States. These programs, from the early 13th century to the mass emigrations to the United produced with Italian TV.

One of the reasons we are shead of the Soviets is that our schoolchildren do not have to sharpen their pencils by hand. Cut energy if you must, but do not deprive the American people of their electric pencil sharpeners at the very moment the Arabs are blackmailing us from abroad. Wouldn't they be pleased to know that their action to embargo oil resulted in every bureaucrat's pencil in this country breaking because no one could get E decent point!

The second letter is from the Electric Knife Association of America.

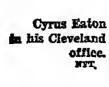

Mr. President. There are now 56,000,539 electric knives in the United States, or one for every family of four. These people would starve to death if the Energy Office goes ahead with its plans to ban the sale of electric knives during the crisis. Only a few Americans know how to carve a chicken, turkey or ham with E regular

If you recall, in your inaugural address you urged the people to ask what they could do for themselves. What they did, Mr. President, was go out and buy electric knives so their government wouldn't have to cut their meat for them. Are you now going to say to these people. "Put away your electric knives which I urged you to buy and cut your meat as they do in the underdeveloped countries of the Third World"?

The final sample letter might be from the Heated Swimming Pool Association. President Nixon, Are You Listening?

We, the 543,890,000 heated swimming pool contractors of America, urge you to give us special attention during the fuel shortage, not because it is in our interest—but because it is to the nation's advantage. We can prove that by allowing people to heat their pools you will be saving energy rather than wasting it. For every person in a heated swimming pool (the average time spent in one is an hour per dayl, this means one less person using an hour of electricity to watch television. Or, to put it another way, the family who swims together in a heated pool means one less car on the highway burning gas. PEO-PLE WITH HEATED SWIM-MING POOLS STAY HOME.

Cyrus Eaton At 90: Still A Believer

By Alden Whitman

CLEVELAND (NYT).—The Nova Scotia youth to whom John D. Rockefeller sr. took a shine some 75 years ago and started in business celebrated his 90th birthday last Thursday as one of the country's foremost active capitalists. He is Cyrus S. Eaton sr., the multimilitionaire chairman emeritus of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., E man who is a "strong believer" in private enterprise for the United States and yet holds with pride E Lenin Peace Prize.

He is erect of carriage, vigorous of body (he still rides horseback and walks at least a mile a day) and lucid of mind. A conservetively dressed Mr. Eaton still occupies the office he has been in for the past 30 years on the 36th floor of the Terminal Tower Building, E suite that reflects his paradoxes.

The spacious paneled office, lighted by two chandeliers and arrayed with chairs, sofas and a simple double desk, has a commanding view of Cleveland Harbor and Laks Erie. The office bespeaks executive power, which he held in fact for 20 years until a couple of months ago when he was removed as chairman of the multihillion-dollar Chessie System and which he still tries to exert as the transportation empire's single largest stockholder of record, with 115,000 shares. But when Mr. Exton looks up from his straightback chair and glances around the room, the only decorations his eyes can fall on are oil paintings, the gifts of leaders of Communist countries.

To his right is an enormous oil of a horse-drawn water

eart in E wheat field, E present from Bulgaria; at his back, over the fireplace, is a sylvan scene from the Soviet Union; and elsewhere are reminders of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania elsewhere are reminders of Ozechoslovakia, Foland, Rumania and Hungary. "I'm saving a space for China," he remarked with a laugh as he displayed his gallery. "I'm proud of what I have done to create understanding and trade between the United States and the Soviet Union." Mr. Eaton said recalling that his interest in Russia went back to 1901. He began his active relationship 20 years ago during the cold war when American suspicion of the Soviet Union was widespread. At the time, he was called the "Kremlin's favorite capitalist" and some questioned his patriotism.

What got me started was the atomic bomb and the realization that our civilization and theirs could be wiped out over-night," Mr. Eston recalled. "I thought I ought to try to do something to prevent this, and I helped put together and financed a meeting of American and Soviet atomic scientists at my boyhood home in Pogwash, Nova Scotia, in 1954 in the that they would warn their governments of the perils to "Afterward I visited the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe end was bost to their leaders bere, with the aim of fostering trade and understanding. I believed then (and I believe now) that a nation's social and economic system is its affair. I wouldn't want Communism here, but it the Russians want it,

In 30 years of urging capitalists and Communists to meet each other halfway. Mr. Eaton said that he had not profited from a Communist transaction until last year when his rall-roads hauled American grain in the Soviet wheat deal. "I had sold them some of my prize short-horns for cattle-breeding, but I didn't make enything out of it." he added. Looking at the American economy, Mr. Eston is bullish for the future. "With all our resources and our men of resource, I am confident of continued growth under private enterprise, he declared.

In 70 years of business Mr. Eaton has accumulated several fortunes and a reputation, not all of it favorable, for canniness, The first fortune was in gas and electricity in Canada and the Midwest. He also has profitable utility interests in Tokyo,

Berlin and Brazil. At one point he made $85 million in a stock sale to the late Samoel Insul, the Chicago utilities magnate whose holding companies foundered in the Depression. "Poor devil," said Mr. Exton of Mr. Insull, "he really didn't deserve to be so persecuted." (Mr. Insull was tried and convicted in the 1930s in the scandals resulting from the collepse of his companies.)

In the 1920s, during the Depression and afterward, Mr. Eaton employed what was virtually a house brokerage firm, Otis & Co., in which he was associated with the late William Daley. At one point in the Depression Mr. Eaton lost heavily— $6 million in a couple of days, according to friends—but he bounced back through holdings in the Republic and Inland Steel companies and through loans from the welfare fund of John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers Union.

In 1947 with Mr. Daley and Otis & Co., he was involved an underwriting commitment for the Kaiser-Frazer car-a deal that foundered.

With the late Robert R. Young, he helped establish the principle of competitive bidding for railroad securities 35 years ago in a refunding of Chesapeake & Ohio Railway bonds, breaking the monopoly that until then had been the sole preserve of

J. P. Morgan & Co and Kuhn Loeb & Co.
Transportation has been his major concern since. The C & O is among the country's most profitable reliroads, and Mr. Faton's holdings in Chessie System, Inc., the C & O's parent, are worth about $6 million at market. At 90 Mr. Eaton does, not consider himself retired. He lives at Acadia Farms, a 1,000-acre spread in nearby Northfield. where he rises at 6 s.m. every business day, and is in his office by 8:30. "I go into the office because I want to keep my eye on a great property in which I am the biggest stockholder," he said; alluding to his distrust of those who now run the Chessie System, distrust that almost led him to conduct a proxy fight when he was voted out as chairman a few months ago. It was thought then that his wife, Ann, would be named to the board, but she is said to have declined His total fortune is his own secret but family friends say it runs between $150 million and $200 million.

Bot his proudest business accomplishment has not been making money, the white-haired Mr. Eston asserted. "One of the things I'm most pleased to have done was to have worked behind the scenes in the 30s to bring about the development of the St. Lawrence Seaway." he said, continuing: "President Franklin D. Roosevelt asked me to use my good offices with my friends in Canada to speed the project and I was glad to do it. The Seaway's benefit to both countries has been enormous, tremendous, and business has profited from it."

As for his longevity, he went on with a langh. "I think I've benefited by following the advice of the late Sir William Osler, the British physician, who told me years ago to avoid Bacchus, Lady Nicotine and young Aphrodites.

"Well, that, plus exercise. And I exercise my mind,

"For another thing, I keep in touch, as I always have, with bright minds. Bertrand Russell was a close friend, so was John Dewey, so is Sir Julian Huxley, so is Jacques Monod, the

Many of these friendships have been furthered by his Pugwash conferences, of which there have been 40 since the initial meeting-most of them abroad. There will be another this summer, this time, as the first, at Pugwash, the Nova Scotla fishing village where he was born. The topic will be bilingualism, with special reference to Canada, and Mr. Eaton will be on hand to chat with the academics.

Californian Man Puts Car Out of Its Misery

With the help of about 50 others. Roger T. Sweltzer of Anaheim, Calif., beat his house-less carriage to death Tuesday on property belonging to the Ford Motor Company. "I had to do it," he said, after he and members of the Outraged Consumers Action Committee had pounded his 1972 Pinto into a pile of scrap, using hammers, axes, crow-bers and clubs.

The committee consists of southern California car owners and was formed by the owner of 2 Lincoln Continental who burned his car in protest two years

"It's been dying by inches ever since I got it," Sweltzer said. "I would rather put it out of its misery and kill it before it kills me or something else. .

"I have been trying to get the company either to fix that car or give me another one since the day after I got it," Sweitzer told the Associated Press, "but the only satisfaction I ever got—until today was when E Ford repre-sentative asked me, 'What do you want for $3,000?'

Sweitzer charged each person who helped him demolish his car $1 E swing. He plans to use the money he collected to help pay for another sort of transportation: a bicycle.
